Summer Infant Keeps Kids Safe with a Wide Range of Gates

All Possible Sizes and Configurations to Ensure Children Stay in a Safe Place

North Smithfield, RI (May 8, 2006) – Life is fast-paced and today's homes offer up a variety of logistical problems when trying to keep a curious toddler out of harms way. Not all doorways, staircases, and other openings fit a standard measurement from house to house. Therefore, safety gates need to cover a wide range of sizes and configurations in order for parents to find the perfect fit for their home. Summer has continued to be a leader in this category by turning these varied needs into functioning gates.

"We want parents to walk into a store and immediately find a gate that fits their home décor, fits the location they need coverage for, and fits their idea of a good value," states Jason Macari, President and CEO of Summer Infant. "In addition to this, we have worked hard to make sure each gate is easy to assemble and install so there is no room for error."

Gates are a security device and all Summer Infant gates are certified by the Juvenile Products Manufacturers Association (JMPA). To help consumers choose the right gate and to make the installation process as smooth as possible, Summer provides a variety of tools such as templates, online support via a gate matrix that helps parents easily find the right gate for their needs, in package and online instruction sheets, rich media product demonstrations, and extra extensions should the need arise. No two homes or children are alike; therefore no two Summer gates are alike – except for in one respect, their uncompromised quality.
